Town & Country Bank leader receives another major award

ST. GEORGE, UT—For the second time this month, Town & Country Bank CEO Bruce Jensen has received notable recognition.

The Western Independent Bankers Association presented Jensen with its 2015 “Community Banker of the Year Award” at its annual conference last week in Maui, Hawaii. The association, comprised of community banks in 13 western states and U.S. territories, chose Jensen from 11 nominees who had demonstrated significant achievement in their service areas.

Earlier this month, Utah Business magazine presented Jensen with its 2015 “CEO of the Year” award in Salt Lake City at the Grand America Hotel.

Town & Country Bank is Washington County’s only locally owned and headquartered financial institution. The seven year old bank generated record profits in 2014, and was consistently ranked among the top 3 to 5 percent of all U.S. banks in terms of profitability for each quarter of 2014, according to Bank Trends.
